Personal Vision and Mission Statement

Andrew Fitzgerald

CSULB, ETEC 530

Personal Vision Statement

Dispelling ignorance through creative means of education. Creating better individuals with honesty, integrity, commitment, and an open mind.

LBUSD Vision Statement

Every student a responsible, productive citizen in a diverse and competitive world

Personal Mission Statement

To be a role model and mentor as a father, husband, Professional teacher, and friend. To provide an education to those around me in order cultivate a better informed, educated society. To always learn and grow as a person and professional. To continuously pursue my many interests and hobbies. To enjoy what life has to offer on a daily basis, keeping an open mind to what the world presents me every day.

LBUSD Mission Statement

To support the personal and intellectual success of every student, every day.

Comparison

Both my vision statement and LBUSD's center on the idea of creating better individuals. LBUSD's includes only the values of responsibility and productivity, and doesn't necessarily imply education, although one could infer that an individual cannot be proactively responsible and productive unless they have some sort of education. My vision statement is a little more specific, and begins with the idea of getting rid of ignorance. This is important to me, as I see ignorance a big factor in the stagnation of societies' improvement over time. My statement specifically states education, by whatever means necessary to get the job done. Whereas, LBUSD's states every student as being responsible, I'm a bit more specific by stating the values of honesty, integrity, commitment, and having an open mind. Responsibility is an umbrella term. My values are more specific in creating an ideal citizen.

LBUSD's mission statement clearly implies its job, supporting the students and employees of LBUSD. Whether direct or indirect, every employee in the district has a job that influences the outcomes of our students. The statement not only includes intellectual success through education, but also includes the personal success aspect. This relates to their vision statement of creating responsible and productive citizens. LBUSD's mission statement center's on its main goal as an institution, actively providing a quality educational experience to its stakeholders. My statement goes beyond the student to also involve those in my life, be it family, friends, or my students. It also includes myself as a stakeholder. I believe that as an individual in society, I also need to improve on a daily basis. Whereas LBUSD's statement centers on its goals as an organization involving many people, mine revolves around myself and my personal goals as an individual.
